

Problem Statement

Smartphones are essential for students' academic and personal activities, however limited battery capacity and inadequate charging infrastructure on campus often leave students with a dead phone before the day ends. Existing solutions, like bulky power banks or scarce wall outlets, are inconvenient, expensive, or inaccessible. As a result students lack a convenient and reliable way to keep their devices charged throughout the day.